

Collaborative Causes Site with Git + GitHub Part II

- Now that you've learned branching/merge conflicts...each group member in your most recent project should branch off their work so far from yesterday.
- The branch should get pushed up to GitHub and a pull request should get submitted to merge the branch into master.
- Another group member should review the pull request before merging it into master.
- Keep practicing this process until you have it down - its not a fun one but will be really useful in a real-world development environment!